

Malnutrition in Nursing Homes

 californiainjuryaccidentlawyer.com/malnutrition-in-nursing-homes/

Nursing home neglect that results in malnutrition puts the elderly at risk of developing serious health problems. Malnutrition in nursing homes can even result in health issues that end up being life-threatening. This type of injury occurs when nursing home staff fail to provide the elderly with adequate nutrition.

If you have loved ones showing signs of malnutrition in nursing homes, our California nursing home negligence attorneys at Johnson Attorneys Group can assist you. We can help you with finding a doctor for your loved one's care, even if they do not have medical insurance. We can also assist you in seeking financial compensation for the medical care needed for treating malnutrition. Keep in mind that we do not charge legal fees for your case unless we settle it or win it. Call us at 1-800-208-3538 to get a complimentary case evaluation from a nursing home abuse lawyer.

California Malnutrition and Nursing Home Negligence Laws

Malnutrition can cause severe physical health problems in the elderly, especially those who have underlying illnesses. This type of neglect can also cause serious cognitive issues among seniors who have Alzheimer's disease or other illnesses that affect their cognitive abilities. Nursing homes are required to provide elderly patients with proper nutrition to help prevent physical and cognitive problems. Elderly abuse in nursing homes that involves malnutrition due to negligence occurs when nursing homes provide inadequate nutrition for patients. Our nursing home negligence lawyer can help you seek compensation if your loved one needs hospitalization or long-term care due to elder malnutrition in nursing homes.

Types of Compensation Available for Nursing Home Neglect Victims Suffering from Malnutrition

If your loved one is showing malnutrition in the elderly symptoms and requires medical care, California law allows you to seek compensation from the party at fault. Some of these symptoms include:

- loss of appetite or a decreased appetite
- irritability
- fatigue
- trouble concentrating
- slow wound healing
- loss of muscle mass or fat

If you notice these symptoms and your loved one ends up needing medical care for malnutrition, our nursing home lawyer can fully explain the types of compensation available to you, such as medical and civil damages due to negligence from nursing home staff. The maximum amount of compensation available will depend on certain factors, such as how severe your loved one's malnutrition is or what type of care they received in the hospital. No matter what this maximum amount is, our nursing home malnutrition attorney can assist you in seeking it.

An Experienced California Nursing Home Abuse Attorney Can Help You Get the Maximum Recovery for Your Malnutrition and Nursing Home Negligence Case

Insurance companies can make it difficult for you to get the maximum recovery for a wrongful death or serious health problems caused by malnutrition in elderly nursing home patients. Our personal injury attorney who has the skills and knowledge needed to help you get the financial compensation you are entitled to for your loved one's injuries. Our nursing home neglect lawyers at Johnson Attorneys Group do not charge you with any legal fees unless we are able to win your case or settle it successfully. Please contact us at 1-800-208-3538 for a case evaluation at no cost from an experienced California nursing home negligence attorney.