Protecting Your Rights in San Diego

Our first priority when we take on a new client is to make sure their immediate medical needs are addressed. While a monetary award is the final goal, if you are experiencing pain or still require medical treatment, we can direct you to a wide network of elite physicians. These medical teams specialize in treating acute traumatic injuries that not only provide relief from suffering, but also aim to prevent our clients from progressing into a worse condition.

Helping you recover your losses and getting you back into a daily routine as soon as possible is always our main goal. As your lawyer, we work to help you understand all your legal choices, and we submit all the right claims for reimbursement of your out-of-pocket fees along any future financial losses. We operate on a contingency fee basis, advancing all costs associated with your case - you pay no fees until your case is settled.

And if necessary, we will take your case to trial. Our experienced researchers and negotiators work hard to avoid the costs of an extensive trial by using alternative methods such as pre-litigation settlement negotiations and leading-edge mediation presentations.

Compensation You May Be Entitled

There are time limits for personal injury lawsuits in California. Therefore, it is so important to seek legal representation as soon as possible. If found guilty, those who may be responsible for your personal injuries can be held liable for the following:

- Medical treatment – includes hospital visits, emergency room treatment
- Doctor's treatment – in-patient or out-patient continued medical treatment
- Pain and suffering – for the physical and/or mental pain and suffering that resulted from the accident caused by another
- Physical damage – if your car was damaged or destroyed, you may be entitled to partial or full value of the vehicle
- Lost wages and lost future earnings – if you are unable to work, you may be entitled to monetary compensation for the money you would have earned as well as projected future earnings
